Berlin—General von Seeckt, minister of defense, today ordered the dissolution of the German communist party and the confiscation of its funds. He also prohibited the holding of communist meetings and the publication of communist newspapers.

The order fell like a bomb on the communist party, which has been working for some time to have a decisive hearing on the attitude of those parties in the present situation toward the Stresemann government.

The communists were especially furious and angry scenes were enacted in the Reichstag over General von Seeckt's sudden and drastic action.

BULLETIN
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Berlin—An unequivocal vote of confidence was demanded of the Reichstag today by Chancellor Stresemann, who informed the legislature that he did not propose to retain office on the strength of the indirect approval which would be accorded him by the rejection of the independent "no confidence" resolutions introduced by the socialists and the German nationalists.

Neither of these, he pointed out, will be able in the present situation to command the majority necessary to unseat him.

The government, asserted Dr. Stresemann, declined to be made the beneficiary of party tactics, and only confidence in the government could clearly define vote of confidence.

Leaders of the pro and anti-government parties at once hoped that their forces for the vote that would determine the fate of the Stresemann ministry.

The fact that the socialists, late last night, decided to present an independent resolution of "no confidence" was viewed by some observers as forecasting a victory for the chancellor, for it has been virtually conceded that the ministry could not survive should the socialists vote with the nationalists on the latter's "no confidence" motion.

Interim Vote Possible
The chancellor's demand for a clean cut vote of confidence threw the parliamentary situation again into confusion and revived the possibility of a military dictatorship being declared by General von Seeckt, as an early development.

By refusing to become the doubtful beneficiary of the rejection of the opposition, the government has placed itself in a position of strength.

Aged Prince With Young Ideas Asks Pope's Sanction to Rewed

The Princess of Pless, the former Daisy Cornwallis-West.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Rome.—Prince Hans Heinrich of Pless may be six or thirty years old. But he has young ideas.

For, after thirty-two years of wedded life with the Princess Pless, formerly Daisy Cornwallis-West, he has presented a plan to the pope for dissolution of that marriage in order that he may be free to wed again. And the future Princess Pless, it is said, is the Countess Dietrichstein, 20, blonde, beautiful and the toast of Vienna.

The prince, in his plea, says that he was "persuaded" to marry Miss Cornwallis-West 32 years ago by her father. It wasn't so much what her father said at the time that influenced him, the prince hints, as it was what father held in his hand. It was a revolver, and the next sign of the name weapon comes on wheels, he feels sure.

The prince says he hadn't been serious up to that time.

He was one of the richest men in Germany up to the time of the war. Then, fearing to lose his wealth, he became a citizen of Poland. Most of the mine properties he held in Upper Silesia were later awarded to Poland.

Manila.—The Philippine legislature held memorial services in honor of the late President Warren G. Harding today.

Governor General Leonard Wood, officers of the army and navy, and officials of the Philippine government attended the ceremonies.

Manuel Quezon, president of the senate, who presided, declared the memorial services was a "loving tribute to admiration and respect to the late President Harding, as well as an expression of loyalty and friendship to America and its people."

Two other members of the legislature also paid tribute to the late president.

3 "DOPE" ADDICTS SENT TO MENDOTA

Authorities Hope They May Be Broken of Deadly Habit.

Three of the four Janesville alleged "dope" addicts arrested Wednesday night were committed to the state asylum at Mendota for not less than six months nor more than a year when they are placed in the hands of the state police.

The commitments were issued by Judge H. L. Maxfield for Oscar Erickson, Eugene Riley and Hugh Wagoner. Erickson and Riley pleaded guilty to the charge and are still out on $1,500 bail awaiting trial Dec. 6.

District Attorney S. G. Dunlap said that the three men appeared here late Friday or Saturday to investigate the local situation. Narcotic users are there are more "dope" addicts in Janesville per capita than anywhere else in the state.

SEEK DOCTOR IN "DIPLOMA MILL" SCANDAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Hartford, Conn.—Investigators of the Missouri "diploma mill," which enabled scores to be licensed as physicians in Connecticut without adequate training, today suggested to be in the trail of Dr. George E. Sutcliffe, who is wanted to testify about the death of a patient.

An extraordinary grand jury, called at the behest of Governor Tompkins to inquire into the workings of the "mill," already has given testimony that an ex-soldier died under other while being treated by Sutcliffe for a minor injury.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Harborsville, Ky.—Jailer Charles Weis and Deputy Sheriff John Measer were killed and Daniel Allen, a deputy, was seriously wounded when shot down from ambush on Stinking Creek, Knox county, early today, according to reports reaching here from Flat Lick. The officers had gone to Stinking Creek with a warrant for the arrest of Pete Bailey, who had escaped jail here last week.

REPARATION BODY HEARS BERLIN ON CAPACITY TO PAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris.—The allied reparations commission today heard the German delegation regarding the capacity of the Reich to pay.

The sitting lasted an hour and a half, being entirely occupied by an exposition of the German economic and financial situation by Dr. Fischer, under secretary of the treasury for the Reich.

In conclusion Dr. Fischer informed the commission that a number of documents were available in support of his declaration, and that the German delegation would hold itself at the disposal of the reparations delegates for any information it could supply verbally to supplement his statement.

The commission, which seemed to find the statement sufficiently explicit, will consider Dr. Fischer's declaration and the supporting documents next Tuesday.

Cities Benefit from Taxes on Interurban Line

Rock county and the cities of Janesville and Beloit benefit in the taxes assessed against street railway, and light, heat and power companies, to considerable extent, according to the figures announced by the state tax commission.

The Rockford & Interurban railway is assessed $1,158 taxes of which $42 will go to Janesville, $1,070 to Beloit, $417 to the town of Beloit and $331 to Rock county.

Out of the payment of $4,153 by the Beloit Traction company, Rock county will receive $321 and the cities of Beloit and Janesville, $2,793 will go to the city of Beloit.

The Wisconsin Gas & Electric company will pay $18.56 to Rock county, $1.44 to Janesville, and $1.44 to Beloit, from the tax against this company to the extent of $2,863 and Walworth county $162.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light company will pay a total tax of $1,225.87. Jefferson county will receive $2,350, and Walworth, $1,006.

Forced Payments for Schools, Plan

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madison.—Mandamus action to compel Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman to issue warrants for payment of emergency appropriations for state educational institutions are probable if the emergency boards fail to arrive at an agreement on the appropriations, it was stated officially today.

Because of divided opinion as to whether emergency appropriations require the approval of all three members of the board, it was stated that Governor Blaine and State Treasurer Levan may take the stand that signatures of only two members are necessary.

In this event, if the secretary of state declined to issue warrants for the funds, court action would be brought, to test legality of the vote of two members.

Secretary Zimmerman indicated this morning that he would under the emergency funds at a meeting of the board scheduled late this afternoon. At two previous meetings he declined to approve the funds and caused an adjournment.

PAROLE JUMPER IS GIVEN YEAR

Zbleski, Who Escaped from Commitment, Caught in Milwaukee.

Pleading guilty to escaping from the custody of Sheriff Fred Bely of Janesville, a sentence under the commitment law, Edward Zbleski, Janesville youth, was sentenced to a year in the county jail by Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court Friday.

Zbleski was sentenced to serve a term of six months several weeks ago when convicted of knocking his mother down and injuring her. The mother was injured at that time for being partially responsible in that she did not bring up her family correctly and set them a bad example.

Zbleski served a few days of his term and then ran away. He was finally captured in Milwaukee and was brought back to this city by Deputy Sheriff Charles Burtie.

RECORD ORDER FOR CHEESE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
St. Paul.—One million pounds of ammunition cream cheese has been purchased by Fred Palst of Milwaukee, Wis., from the Twin City Milk Producers association. It was announced here today. It is said to be one of the largest cheese orders ever recorded in Minnesota.

Two 20,000 pound shipments will be made each week until the contract has been fulfilled.

The Twin City Milk Producers is an organization of 5,400 farmers who ship to 15 plants in this vicinity.

JUDGE WOULD QUIT; CANNOT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Fond du Lac, Wis.—Judge H. M. Pellens is tired of being a judge and wants to retire. He sent in his resignation to the county board, who told him he could not quit.

The action taken by the board was on the advice of the district attorney here. The reason given is that the job is not elective.

OKLAHOMA SENATE KILLS AMENDMENT TO KLAN BILL.
HELD FIRST TEST
Provided for Filing Lists of Members With Officers of County.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Oklahoma City, Okla.—J. C. Walton, removed on Monday by the Oklahoma county grand jury on seven counts, charging dissemination of public funds, preventing the assembling of the lower house of the state legislature.

Dr. E. A. Davenport, state health commissioner, and W. H. Edwards, former chairman of the deposed governor, also were indicted on five counts each, charging diversion of public funds. Walton made bond of $5,000 on the seven charges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Oklahoma City, Okla.—The state senate, today, in what is regarded as the first test of strength of Ku Klux Klan elements and those opposing the organization, rejected an amendment to the law that would provide for the filing with county officers semi-annually a list of officers and members of secret orders. The vote was 13 to 23.

The amendment was under discussion throughout most of the session yesterday. After its failure, a substitute was introduced, providing for the filing of officers and members of secret orders. The amendment shall be charged with correcting its membership rolls three times annually and keeping them always available for public inspection.

DANCE HALL RULES TABLED BY BOARD

Green County Supervisors Kill Issue for Present Session.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Monroe.—Regulations covering county dance halls were tabled by the county board, which means the issue is dead so far as the present session is concerned.

Chairman W. P. Truhenbrod said that many felt that the county did not have a social dance hall problem and that a flat license rate of $5 for all public dances of all kinds was unfair to some. The local regulation would have been modeled after the state law.

Although the county nurse question was on the verge of being introduced again after the defeat last week, discussion was started.

Miss Beatie Grandall, state welfare nurse, arrived in the city but did not speak as scheduled, refraining on account of a cold.

Board members who are supporting the nurse issue, opposition to a county nurse is expected.

There was report on county aid bridges was presented showing $15,441.06 allowed for bridges and a total of $18,441.10, including the emergency fund.

A resolution providing for the sale of bonds to take care of the $500,000 voted for highways last week was adopted.

ONE OF RASPUTIN'S SLAYERS IN U. S.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York.—Prince Felix Yusupoff, nephew, by marriage, of the Romanoff Czar of Russia and self-confessed member of the party of nobles who slew Czar Nicholas II, today arrived in the Berengaria, on his first visit to this country. He was admitted with his wife, Princess Irene, daughter of the Czar's sister, Grand Duchess Xenia, under a diplomatic passport issued during the czarist regime.

Prince Felix said he came here to see the country, visit friends, exhibit and sell a collection of Russian antiquities, and to consult with his lawyers about arranging for the return of his property.

About the slaying of the monk who was said to have been the evil genius of Russia during the last days of the old regime, the prince was asked many questions.

"Too many things have been written about it, many of them false," he declared. "Yes, it was in my palace that Rasputin was killed."

ANARCHIST IN ASSAULT UPON LEAGUE HEAD

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Buenos Aires.—An attempt was made last night to assassinate Dr. Manuel Carlos, president of the Argentine Patriotic league.

An anarchist worker fired three revolver shots at him as he was entering a restaurant in the crowded business quarter, but the bullets missed their mark. A passerby was seriously wounded.

The Argentine Patriotic league for several years has been actively aiding the police in suppressing various labor disturbances.

Dr. Carlos' assistant, who was arrested, told the police he held the president of the organization responsible for the labor disturbances at Santa Cruz two years ago and for the murder of Kurt Wilkins in a prison cell in this city several months ago.

CLINTON-DARIEN ROAD DEDICATED

Motorcade First to Ride New Concrete—Banquet Friday Night.

Dedication of the concrete on highway 61, connecting Darien in Walworth county and Clinton in Rock county, took place Friday. It is another link in the band between Milwaukee and the southern extremity of the state. Supervisors and citizens of both counties participated.

One hundred and fifty men from Rock county and Clinton were expected in the line of automobiles which left Clinton at 2 p. m. At Darien they joined the motorcade of Walworth county citizens. All traveled to the county seat and returned to Dan.

WEATHER CHANGE BRINGS SNOWFALL

After warming slightly during the night to 37 degrees, or 13 more than the day previous, the weather changed and brought a light snow to southern Wisconsin. A turn to rain followed. Indications are Friday afternoon for further storms during the night. Apparently the change is the forerunner of real winter.

VARIETY EXHIBITS AT PRODUCTS SHOW

JEFFERSON COUNTY BOARD ENDS MEET

Will Show Agricultural Wealth of State at Show in Milwaukee Dec. 1-8.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Milwaukee, Wis.—Every kind of cheese made in Wisconsin is shown at the annual Wisconsin Products Exposition, here, Dec. 1-8, according to E. C. Porter, in charge of arrangements.

This is but one of the features of the show. Here is listed a number of others:

Binder tobacco of which Wisconsin produces 70 percent of the nation's supply will comprise the greater portion of the exhibit of the tobacco pool.

Results of 12 years of grading, inspecting and certifying potatoes will be shown by the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association.

A "Niagara of Milk" will feature the exhibit of the Milwaukee milk producers and distributors.

The Door county fruit growers' union will have an exhibit of apples and cherries with several unique features.

The Wisconsin cheese federation will show a number of varieties of "mello cream."

A farm-business conference is scheduled for the morning of Dec. 5. Participating in this will be the Wisconsin Manufacturing association, the Milwaukee association of commerce, the Wisconsin potato growers' association and many other organizations. Speakers include Emerson E. Madison, attorney, who represented the Wisconsin Tobacco Pool in recent high court litigation, and E. S. Swoboda, counsel for the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation.

Grain growers and the Wisconsin Experiment association will show the results of 25 years of experimenting with Badger pedigreed grains that now are said to go to every state in the union and to many foreign countries. It is reported there are more than 2,500 growers of pedigreed grains in the state.

Tax Exempt Bonds on Feet and Equal Basis

The Bond Buyer, an authority on tax-exempt securities, has the following say in relation to the Mellon tax reduction plan:

"As a result of the publication of Secretary Mellon's letter setting forth the possibilities for government tax reduction, investors and bond dealers seem inclined to inquire rather carefully into the position of tax-exempt securities. Possibly a few holders of tax-exempt bonds feel that Mr. Mellon's eloquent appeal for national lowering of the entire income tax schedule must be accepted as a bearish argument for state, municipal and other exempt issues. While such a conclusion might easily result from a casual reading of the Mellon letter, a careful analysis of the situation suggests that even assuming Mr. Mellon's program had some chance of being accepted by congress, the tax-exempt state and municipal bonds at current price levels are fully as attractive as any other securities of investment rank.

Tax-exempt bonds have never reached a basis, even when tax rates were at the peak, which fully reflected the value of the exemptions they have enjoyed. Today, on a price level far below that reached when the so-called tax-exempt buying was at its height, the spread between taxable and tax-exempt bond prices is so slight that it does not even fully measure the difference in security which is in favor of bonds of states and the larger cities and counties.

"Until about March 1 of the current year, municipal bonds were selling on a tax-exempt basis. At about that time private investor support deserted the market, and the subsequent decline has brought state and municipal bonds down to a level where, in addition to the tax-exempt buyers, the sort of buyers who have in earlier years made the market, institutions are again actual customers for all the bonds that are likely to be offered to them, assuming, of course, that the basis at which they are offered compares favorably, as it does today, with Liberty and with the highest grade taxable issues.

"The private investor is still and will continue to be a very real factor in the municipal market. Even if we assume a reduction in the surtax rates to a maximum of 25 percent, with a six percent normal tax, the $100,000 a year income man would have to realize a 6.6 percent yield on tax-exempt bonds to equal a 4 1/2 percent yield on a bond, which means a real sacrifice of security. If incomes were about $50,000, the taxable bond equivalent of a 4 1/2 percent municipal investment would have to show a return of better than 5 1/2 percent. And, it might reasonably be added, there are thousands of private investors who have recently become acquainted with municipal bonds purely as a result of the desire to avoid taxes, but who will continue to buy such bonds because they now appreciate their inherent safety."

HIGH SCHOOL CORN JUDGING CONTEST

Madison—The fourth annual corn judging contest for the high school students of Wisconsin will be staged at the annual state corn show, Richland Center, Jan. 25 to Feb. 2, according to R. A. Moore and E. D. Holden of the university department of the University of Wisconsin who serve as officers of the association.

Oshkosh high school students placed first in this event last year, while in the former years of the contest Marquette county agricultural school and Viroqua high school annexed topmost position in the competition. About 50 high school students enter this contest and a handsome cup is awarded the winner.

Plans are now being worked out by the university officials for the corn judging event. The contest is expected to attract the largest entry list in its history this year.

BEEKEEPERS WILL MEET ON DEC. 6-7

W. A. Ross, Janesville, Scheduled to Speak on Containers Used for Marketing.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Problems of Wisconsin beekeepers will be discussed and plans for solving such in the coming year outlined at the annual convention of the Wisconsin Beekeepers' association in Milwaukee, December 6 and 7, according to the program announced here today by Miss Malitta D. Fischer, secretary. Leaders in the beekeeping industry from Wisconsin and other states are scheduled to discuss honey production at the convention.

At the opening meeting, reports of the state secretary, treasurer, and standing committees will be given, as well as the report of the board of managers, which is scheduled to meet on Dec. 6. State President James Gwin of Gotham will deliver his annual address at the initial meeting. In the afternoon of the first day, the following topics are listed: New projects of the American Honey Producers' league; Dr. H. D. Truckee, national secretary; Marketing association, E. W. Atkins, Milwaukee; bee and honey exhibits at local fairs, L. P. Whitehead, Madison; school children's interest in bees and honey, V. G. Aldum, Madison; various stages in honey production, L. T. Bishop, Sheboygan; express service, E. H. Kiecher, Milwaukee; mistakes in honey production, A. A. Brown, Janesville.

A meeting of the state association price committee will be held at night. Problems of improving marketing of honey will be discussed by Alois Alfonsus, Oconomowoc.

On the second day, the following topics will be considered: Why new containers for honey are necessary, W. A. Ross, Janesville; Rhographe, H. P. Wilson, Madison; fundamentals of marketing, T. Macklin, Madison; factors influencing the consumption of honey, George B. Demuth, Medina, Ohio; standardization, B. B. Jones, state department of markets; roadside selling and advertising, William Jacobson, Kaukauna; the Badger Brand trademark for honey, Louis A. Loboda, New Lisbon.

The closing session will be devoted to business problems of the association, election of officers and selection of the next meeting place.

The convention will be during the Wisconsin Products exposition and reduced railroad rates will be granted.

BLAINE ATTACKS FEDERAL POLICY

Attitude Toward Farmer and Bonus Assailed; Lenroot Is Contradicted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

La Crosse—The policy of the federal government toward the farmer was strongly assailed by Governor John J. Blaine in an address here last night. He also expressed himself in favor of adjusted compensation for former service men and opposed to the tax plan of Secretary of Treasury Mellon.

Exploiting and profiteering interests, munition makers and railroads received millions for their part in the World war, the governor declared, while the ex-service men are denied a just compensation for their services. Governor Blaine also attacked statements reported to have been made by Senator Lenroot here recently on the federal and state tax situation.

Governor Blaine reiterated his previous statements that there has been no increase in state and local taxes in Wisconsin since 1921. He took sharp issue with Senator Lenroot on this point, saying that while the state has reduced, rather than increased, taxes, the federal government has greatly increased tax burdens.

He said the state "has been able to loan money out of the general revenue fund to aid the federal government in paying its disbursements."

BLAINE ATTACKS FEDERAL POLICY

Attitude Toward Farmer and Bonus Assailed; Lenroot Is Contradicted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

La Crosse—The policy of the federal government toward the farmer was strongly assailed by Governor John J. Blaine in an address here last night. He also expressed himself in favor of adjusted compensation for former service men and opposed to the tax plan of Secretary of Treasury Mellon.

Exploiting and profiteering interests, munition makers and railroads received millions for their part in the World war, the governor declared, while the ex-service men are denied a just compensation for their services. Governor Blaine also attacked statements reported to have been made by Senator Lenroot here recently on the federal and state tax situation.

Governor Blaine reiterated his previous statements that there has been no increase in state and local taxes in Wisconsin since 1921. He took sharp issue with Senator Lenroot on this point, saying that while the state has reduced, rather than increased, taxes, the federal government has greatly increased tax burdens.

He said the state "has been able to loan money out of the general revenue fund to aid the federal government in paying its disbursements."

A contented smile to every mile with a CHEVROLET.

COMPANY "M" VETS IN GAY REUNION

Semi-Annual Banquet of "Les Terribles" Is Held in Edgerton.

Company "M" veterans of the World war enjoyed their semi-annual banquet in Cullen Memorial hall at Edgerton, Thursday night, one of the most successful held since the company returned from France and organized the national guard club of vets. George Lyons, Edgerton, vice-president of the club, presided at the banquet of music and speeches and a business session was held afterwards.

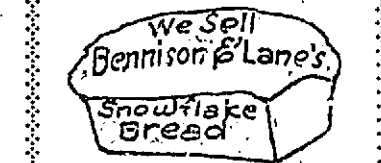

The banquet hall was elaborately decorated in red, white and blue, with small flags and red arrows, the insignia of the "Les Terribles" or 32nd division, covering the table. Sixty-five were served.

Holt Gives Address
Supt. Fred Holt, Edgerton, gave the principal address of the evening. Others who spoke were: Mrs. George Ogden, Edgerton, address of welcome; E. J. Sartell, Janesville, response; P. J. Grimsaw, Thomas Condon, Ralph Kanam, George Stroup and George McKee, all of Janesville; and Adolph Jensen and Leon Ellingson, Edgerton.

Bunker's orchestra played and solos were given by Mrs. Calvin Wana-maker and Miss Edna Hanson. The Rev. E. A. Boyd played a clarinet solo and Miss Alice Nichols gave a reading. The invocation was given by the Rev. R. J. Bailey. In her address of welcome, Mrs. Ogden presented a large basket of flowers in memory of those members of the company who made the great sacrifice and a two-minute silent period was observed in honor of the departed comrades.

Meet Here Next May
The program closed with the singing of "America" by all. Cigars and cigarettes for the evening were furnished by Adolph Jensen, George McKee and Henry Johnson. Those sent by B. C. Wilson were later forwarded by vote of this club to Paul Jensen, Company "M" veteran who has been confined to his home since his return from the war.

An invitation was read from the Service Star Legion of Janesville inviting the boys to meet at its guests in Janesville next May. It was unanimously accepted. A telegram was read from Mrs. Fred Ellis, Janesville, extending greetings to the veterans.

Members of the Edgerton Service Star Legion who cooperated in serving the banquet and preparing the program were: Mrs. George Ogden, president; Mrs. I. J. Drinking at the University.

Serious consideration is being given to the drinking at the Wisconsin university. The outrageous conduct of many students at the homecoming and the events which have followed from publicity of that debauch, has aroused the state. Federal and state enforcement agents should take cognizance of the situation in Madison. The city authorities apparently will not and do not care very much about it. For more than three years a section of Madison, known as Little Italy, has been a plague spot in that city. It has been notorious, and to say it is impossible to purge it morally, is to admit incompetence. Little Italy has continued to exist because it was the place where those who did not care whether the law was enforced or not, have permitted violations of the liquor laws. Its patrons have been of the "very best" as well as the very lowest classes. There has never been a time when it could not be cleaned up. All that was needed was the official incentive—the desire to do it. It was taken by many as a joke—a real clever jest—that aliens, in mind and politically, could be immune from justice. But the home coming antics started a crusade which should be regularly continued until the Italian colony is sent home to Mussolini, jailed or stopped.

It has perhaps escaped some of the readers of the Gazette as to what did occur on the homecoming day. Every parent having a son or a daughter at the university certainly will be deeply concerned with the situation when they see what the daily paper of the students, The Cardinal, had to say at the time. It is:

"The annual drunk is over. Practically every student is once more sober. The grand old homecoming spirit, becoming a more matter of history repeating history.

"Little Italy is quiet for there are no more dozens of students down there lying in a supply of homecoming cheer. Drunken students have ceased their maudlin wanderings up and down the streets. Respectability and decency are returning and the quiet air of scholarship is once more beginning to reign.

"Impossible was it to walk down the street after night without meeting one drunken, maudlin student after another. Impossible to go to the theater without being in the company of intoxicated students. Impossible to go to even a fraternity party without finding any number of students in various phases of intoxication and similar cases in non-fraternity rooming houses. Graduates and undergraduates, alumni and visitors, many of them in all stages of intoxication, enjoying the annual homecoming.

"What is this phase of Wisconsin spirit that induces silence at the game and intoxication on the nights before and after on the part of many and many of the students? They have the distorted notion that to display true loyalty to the school and alma mater, it becomes necessary for them to puzzle down all the poisonous booze within reach."

Besides the burning question of where to park the car there is also the one as to when we will get a five cent cigar made out of tobacco.

The Case of Jack Walton.

It is not very often that we impeach and discharge a governor from office. It is more than ten years since we had an experience similar to the one in Oklahoma—that of William Sulzer, governor of New York, on the several charges of corruption in office. While the same charge was made in the 20 odd counts against Walton, that particular one was voted down, and he stood relieved from the charge of taking state funds or of being bribed. But the other charges on which he was impeached by unanimous vote of the Oklahoma senate, sitting as the trial court, were just as much opposed to American ideas of government, and what a governor should be. It was not the sudden outburst of the governor against the Ku Klux Klan which followed his own membership in the order, that started the state on the road to impeachment. It was a long series of violations of both law and decency that stirred Oklahoma. There is no need to camouflage the interest of the Klan in the trial, but the members of the Klan were not trying to get the governor. He was tried by his fellow citizens because he used his office for personal aggrandizement and usurped power that he was not entitled to under the state constitution. He closed up city governments, placed them under martial law, took over police departments, aroused the indignation of the service men by appointing an ignorant politician to the presidency of the agricultural college and then firing him when there was a rumour on it.

And so on down the list, not to include the pardons granted to the several hundred of the worst convicts ever caught and sent to prisons in the state. Walton is going out on the lecture platform, more's the pity. We can get along without him as well as we could that other notorious Oklahoma product, a woman who was refused a public hearing after a murder trial.

But what of the Ku Klux? Walton is gone and deservedly so but the Klan remains as a menace to peace and order and decent government in Oklahoma. If the same forces which have cleared the state of a violent and foolish governor will start action which will end forever the masked outrages of the Klan we shall have certainly accomplished much for the cause of decent American government and brought the constitution back into being once more.

December 2 is the centennial of the adoption of the Monroe doctrine. One hundred years ago on that day the doctrine which for once and for all gave the powers of Europe a new and decided

COMMUNITY TRUSTS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The wisdom of Benjamin Franklin is proverbial, but when he came to die he did a thing such that time has demonstrated he is not to be ranked as high as a seer as he is as a sage. In his will he left the sum of 1,000 pounds sterling to the city of Philadelphia as a fund from which loans were to be made "upon interest at a per cent to such young, married artificers under the age of 25 as have served an apprenticeship in the said town, and faithfully fulfilled the duties required in their indentures."

These loans were to be not less than 15 pounds or more than 60 pounds each. Franklin calculated that at the end of the first hundred years the fund would have grown to about 121,000 pounds and he stipulated that 31,000 should be set aside for similar loans for another century while the 100,000 pounds should "be let out in public works, fortifications, bridges, aqueducts, public buildings, baths, etc., or whatever may make living in the town more agreeable to strangers resorting thither for health or temporary residence." He recommended specifically that if it had not been done before, the city of Philadelphia should consider "bringing by pipes the water of Mischickon Creek into the town so as to supply the inhabitants."

Franklin's carefully planned philanthropy did not work out in any respect. In the first place, the practice of apprenticeship under articles of indenture in industry was ended within a comparatively few years, a maximum loan of $300 at 5 per cent soon lost its attractions to young men anxious to start in business for themselves, and at the end of 100 years the fund, instead of amounting to $551,000, as Franklin had calculated, was actually considerably less than $100,000. For the last 35 of 40 years no loans whatever have been made for the very good reason that no applicant has qualified under the conditions of the Franklin will. And in the second place the city of Philadelphia grew so rapidly that it could not wait 100 years, which would have been until 1890, to install an adequate water supply system.

Two more modern examples of how not to bequeath money for philanthropic purposes are cited, both also in Pennsylvania. Some 16 years ago a citizen of that state left his fortune of $3,500,000 for "the care and education of poor, white, healthy girls, both of whose parents shall be deceased, not under the age of 6 years or over 10 years, of at least average mental capacity," to be discharged at the age of 16.

Boys were excluded from the beneficiaries of this fund, as were girls who were colored or sickly or either parent living, or who were stupid or under 6 or over 10.

Two years later another citizen of the same community left his fortune of $4,500,000 for the care of "full orphan or fatherless white girls, not over 13 until they arrive at 17 years."

After some 16 years had passed these fortunes, aggregating the huge sum of $8,000,000, sufficient to provide for many hundreds of worthy and needy children, were taking care of only 114 girls, and the administrative problem had become a decidedly vexing one.

It is said that there is not a state and scarcely a city in the country that does not afford similar instances of charity gone wrong. In 1851 Byron Mullaphy, mayor of St. Louis, left one-third of his property to be devoted to the relief of pioneers, stranded in that city, but "bound bona fide," as his will decreed, "to settle for a home in the West." At that time St. Louis had been for several years the "jumping off place" for westward-bound settlers, and for many of them it had proved to be the last stop, their funds, or strength or courage becoming exhausted there.

But within a few years there were practically no beneficiaries for the Mullaphy fund, as he had described them. It now amounts to about a million dollars, and for the last half century the administrators have been hard pressed to find legal ways of spending the income, limited as they are by the conditions prescribed before the City War.

Situations such as have been described are known to philanthropic workers as the handiwork of the Dead Hand. That is to say, the donors of these funds in establishing them out of the finest motives and a wholly generous spirit, have done hands as to continue forever the controlling force over the funds. It has seemed that most philanthropists have the idea that they must stipulate even to the minutest details exactly how their charities are to be administered or the money will be wasted or devoted to less worthy purposes. And in about nine cases out of ten it develops that they defeat their own ends.

To eliminate this Dead Hand is the object of the community trusts which are now being established throughout the country. The idea originated with the late Judge Frederick Goff, of Cleveland, according to Ralph Hayes, director of the New York Community Trust, and the movement is growing rapidly.

As the plan has been worked out in New York City, ten of the leading banks and trust companies have agreed to act as trustees of funds intended for public purposes and to turn the income over to a distribution committee to supervise its expenditures. This committee consists of seven members, one chosen by the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York; another by the president of the New York Academy of Medicine; a fourth by the mayor of New York; a fifth by the president of the board of trustees of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences; a sixth by the senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and the remaining five by the trustees of the Community Trust.

This committee is expected to reflect "business prudence, popular respectability and civic progressiveness," an former Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield puts it. Its membership is so rotated that some appointments occur each year and there is assurance that the funds will always be safeguarded and applied only in ways that will conserve the public interest.

Under this system, it is hoped that persons bequeathing money for philanthropic purposes will not specify just how it is to be expended, but will leave that to the discretion of the committee. But if the donors do have a specific charity which they insist upon designating they are urged to leave the distribution of the funds to the committee's decision when it in the course of events the time should come when the original purpose of the bequest can not be carried out to the advantage of the community as a whole. That is what makes it in reality a community trust.

It is fitting that this great document should not be overlooked in historical celebrations of events and pronouncements of the very highest value to this nation.

The fashion bulletins and flapper publications will take the place of the old Police Gazette as barber shop literature if the present style of patronage keeps up.

Instead of the skeletons found on Long Island being those of Norsemen as the scientists say, they probably are from the family closets of some of the rich colony out in that section.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

PATRIOTISM
One need not hate an alien land to be a staunch and true defender of his own. I hold my country first, and make it known by all the strength which God has given me. I never raise my eyes far to see that which my love and gratitude are shown. A fatherland which has never blown above a temple spire or ship at sea. Yet I can breathe the love of this land, And count the blessings which have made her great. Refuse that I am her's and that I stand Each day within the shelter of her state, Can give her all my love and service, and Still speak of alien countries without hate. (Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest.)

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

A BRIDEGROOM'S COMPLAINT
(With Apologies to Edwin Arlington Robinson.)
Some men there are, most men, indeed, Who marry "cause the girl is good; And some embrace the marriage creed So that their wives may cook their food. Some even choose their future spouse Because she simply has the dough; Some seek a gal who can converse—Ah well! But I, I choose my wife—Ah well! Because she had a velvet skin. A skin the angels couldn't beat. She wasn't fat, she wasn't thin. She wasn't clever, rich or sweet. But, oh! she had a soft face. Her throat! I'd touch it and I'd swoon! I begged her my lone home to grace— We married, 'twas one night in June. The bells have rung, we both took flight. She blushed red, she blushed blue. But—woo is me!—even that night She used her beauty—Miserable! For those that never knew the light The darkness is a lucky thing. And we, the Bridgemen of the Night, Seem lost in Fortune's winnowing. —Irving Kaye Davis.

Dr. Representative Volstead is back from Europe and has nothing to say about either the natural growth, goes on at a certain rate which varies with different tissues but is uniform for the body as a whole, nothing we can do will hasten or retard the process. The body is made up of thousands of tiny cells which are being produced by nature to replace the skin or mucous membrane.

Who's Who Today

HERBERT HENRY ASQUITH

Herbert Henry Asquith, former premier of England, once more will assume the duties of prime minister if the United Liberal factions carry the coming elections, according to word from abroad. The recent ending of the feud between Asquith and Lloyd George brought the divided Liberal party together and it is believed the hatched was buried in the hope that a united group could dislodge the Baldwin forces. Asquith's life, bonds like fiction. Born of manufacturing, nonconformist stock, the great schools of England were above the social or educational ambitions of the family. Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

TAINT IN THE BLOOD
Layed healing which the victim of a wound or sore attributes to, poor blood is really due to the daily destruction of delicate new tissue cells, the scaffolding erected by nature, by the ill advised use of antiseptics or germicides. Scientific neglect, as I explained the other day, is the ideal management of wounds or sores, small or great in the serious intelligent management of wounds or sores or ulcers never destroys have no place at all after the preliminary cleaning up.

QUINIONS AND ANSWERS.
Vague on Migraine.
Read your articles first thing every day in order to have your articles. Migraine is a misfortune, of which you recently wrote interestingly. The doctors I have been to have all said you are the subject of migraine. Have you told of prolonged line of cancer, all small doses. What does and how long? What really causes migraine? I have had these attacks since the age of 15 years. I am now 31 years old. I wear glasses two days a month.

Answer.—The doctor I treated, which some good doctors have treated, said for some of, perhaps 5 to 10 drops of castor oil three times a day over a period of six months. Reduce the dose of the oil, the frequency of the doses if the castor oil proves too laxative. Castor oil in soft capsules may be used, if you prefer. I do not prefer. After the Operation.
I have been using a lotion for after surgery and for chapped hands, made from a formula you printed last winter. Since I have inhaled the formula, I do appreciate it if you will print it. It contained some kind of chips and was the finest thing I had ever found.

Answer.—An old domestic recipe for a lotion intended to prevent and relieve chapping, redness and roughness of the skin, many years ago reported satisfaction from its use as a lotion for the face after shaving. The recipe is: Boile acid..... 5 drops Glycerin..... 5 drops Tricresol..... 5 drops Soft water..... 1 pint Tricresol in shavings, chips or small pieces of wood, is more effective than the powder. Boil slowly, constantly stirring, until a clear fluid is on the skin two or three times a day after washing and before the face has dried thoroughly. A drop or two of any perfume or scent may be added if desired.

Climate of Detroit.
Kindly inform me whether the climate of Detroit is generally considered good or bad for people who have asthma.

Answer.—Climate has little to do with asthma.

Q. Can an inventor devise an improvement on a patented article, and patent the improvement? J. H. G.
A. The patent of an inventor is impossible for an inventor to make an improvement on an article which has already been patented and to take out a patent on the improvement without the consent of the original patentee or assignee.

Q. What will remove paint from an iron bed? E. D. H.
A. Scraper off as much paint as possible with a knife. Then use turpentine to soften whatever paint still adheres to the bed, apply with a paint brush spirits of turpentine, benzine, or a strong solution of equal parts of alcohol and turpentine. After this has stood a short while the paint can be wiped off with a coarse cloth or scrubbed away. Repeat this process if necessary.

Q. Can you give a simple chemical test to distinguish linen from cotton? C. C. G.
A. To test for adulteration, an infallible way is to boil a sample in orange juice. If it is cotton it will then put in a 50 per cent solution of caustic alkali. If cotton is present, it will take on a light yellow color and the linen will become brown and stiff. If it is cotton, it will take on a light yellow color and the linen will become brown and stiff.

Q. John R. Quinn, the new commander of the American Legion, is from where? H. W. G.
A. John R. Quinn, the new commander of the American Legion, is from near Bakersfield, Cal. He went into the artillery in August, 1917, and was commissioned captain three months later. He was commander of the 1st battery of the 34th field artillery overseas and served in the Meuse-Argonne. He was mustered out in March, 1919. He is a ranchman by occupation.

Q. What animal bears the fur called caracul? M. O. K.
A. An animal of the same name bears the fur. It is found in Russia and that part of Europe which is the Balkan states. The original color of the fur is white. Some specimens are earlier than others. The fur or "hood" is considered choker.

Q. Do eyeglasses fall out and new ones take their place? M. L. S.
A. The lifetime of eyeglasses is from four to six months. They are constantly being replaced by new pairs.

Q. In Argentina there is a voodoo as heavy as iron and reddish in color. What is its name? H. A.
A. It is quebracho. It is pronounced as if spelled quebracho. The word means "break axe." This comes from the fact that this wood is one of the hardest and heaviest known, having a specific gravity of 1.4. It is very durable and is used for railroad ties, ship and bridge timbers, wharves, etc.

Q. In playing polo, is "hooking" a stick allowed? H. W. G.
A. In British play, a player is permitted to hook an opponent's stick if the latter is in the act of striking the ball, provided he is immediately behind him or on the same side of his pony as the ball; in American play, hooking a stick is prohibited.

Q. How many presidents have had their pictures on postage stamps? C. C.
A. Fifteen presidents' portraits have appeared on United States postage stamps. They are as follows: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Polk, Taylor, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt and Harding.

Q. What is magnetite sand? C. L. F.
A. The geological survey says that particles of sand that are attracted by a magnet are known as magnetite. Sometimes this is called magnetite sand. Magnetite is an oxide of iron and is one of the most valuable ores of iron.

The Economy BAKING POWDER

"My bakings used to be a matter of 'hit or miss'—sometimes they were successful; then again a total failure, no matter how hard I tried. But that was before a friend persuaded me to try Calumet. Now I know what the result will be—what to expect every time—perfectly raised, uniformly baked foods. Bake day is really a delight."

Baking Powder plays an important part in the success or failure of your baking. The great American housewives all realize this. They have found by experience that a better leavener is not, and cannot be made—that for nutritious and wholesome foods it has no equal.

Calumet is made in the World's largest baking powder factories; human hands never touch it.

freshness packed in air-tight Tin Containers

To keep it fresh for you

THE moment you open a tin of Thomas J. Webb Coffee, you can sense its delicious freshness. Direct from the "live flame" roaster to you, no moisture has reached it. No hand has touched it. Not a bit of air has seeped through its container to rob you of its precious freshness.

You don't have to transfer this coffee into an air-tight jar for fresh keeping. Its original tin container with its friction top cover affords complete protection. Protects the coffee on its way to you—protects it while you use it. That's why you can use it little by little and find the very last particle in the tin just as fresh and fragrant and flavor-filled as the first.

Because of this protected freshness, a pound of Thomas J. Webb Coffee goes further than a pound of ordinary coffee. Gives you many more cups of good coffee to the pound—costs you less per cup than coffees that sell for less on the pound.

THOUGHT BEAR DEAD;
LOCAL MAN ATTACKED

Richard Schenck, 220 South Jackson street, has returned from a hunting trip in Lincoln county with a 400-pound black bear and a deer. Alfred D. Graves, 170 South Jackson street, accompanied Mr. Schenck and brought home a deer. Schenck had a shot at the big bear, and thinking he had killed it, went into its lair only to be attacked by the beast in its dying struggle. He was scratched up some before he finally succeeded in killing it by slashing its throat.

Five of Regulars
Lost by Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Hope of Michigan football fans that they can hold place at the top of the western conference football teams was somewhat weakened Friday with an announcement that five regulars would be starting lineup against Minnesota Saturday. The outcome of this game will largely determine the Big Ten championship. Among those on Michigan's roster are Fred Fitzpatrick, regular quarterback; Blott, Marlon and Vandervoort, regular line men. The chances of the Wolverines are to rest in a good measure with the substitutes who will fill these places.

100 WAYS
To Make Money

By BILLY WINNER

If I Were a Farmer—
I would find a ready market for my used implements. With the money I would get from selling equipment I could not use, I would buy, at a savings, the latest and machinery I really needed.

Other farmers would need a plow or harrow or tiller or tractor or some other farm implement that I might have to sell. On the other hand, they would have a planter or a harrower or a wagon that I would want.

I would think the farmer who wanted what I had, as well as the men who had what I wanted, through Janesville Gazette Want Ads.

Think of the money I could save by this trading—this buying and selling at a profit. Janesville Gazette Want Ads would be as profitable for me to use as for other farmers. And other farmers are using them now with satisfaction.

Normal Battle to Settle Score

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Whitewater — The stage is set for Whitewater's annual homecoming. The big event on the program is the visit here of the Eau Claire football team, the winner to hold second place in the state normal race.

Each team has had one defeat, but the squads are the class of the conference with the exception of the unusually fine Oshkosh outfit. An old score is to be settled. North team lost a game last year, efforts to book a post-season clash to settle the title race were futile.

A great turnout is expected.

BADGERS OPEN WAR
ON TICKET SCALPERS

Madison — War on ticket scalpers for the Chicago-Wisconsin game Saturday was launched Thursday night by university athletic officials. Director of Athletics T. E. Jones said Friday persons who purchased numbers of tickets with the intention of selling them at high prices have been detected and court action is probable. Reports to the athletic department are that as high as $10 is being offered for tickets to the game. Director Jones stated a close check has been kept on persons purchasing tickets.

"A Rising or a Setting Sun"

This great speech of James M. Beck, Solicitor General of the United States, is well worth preservation in the homes of all citizens. The question of the changing of the constitution of the United States, placing limitations upon it and a general forgetfulness of the times and the men who made it makes this appeal to the manhood and womanhood of America most timely.

My title refers to one of the most interesting and dramatic, but little known episodes in American history. One hundred and thirty-six years ago this September 22, men met in the last time in the State House in Philadelphia. They had been in session for four long weary months. Their problem was as great as it was unique. For the first time in human history the representatives of a nation met to devise and promulgate a written constitution and a legislative scheme of government. Like all true master-builders they "built better than they knew," for when the document was signed, it was not only a new era in the history of the world, but it was the beginning of a new era in the history of the United States. It was not with elation in their hearts but rather in the spirit of the deepest depression. Although they were weary, they were not weary of the common consent of mankind as the "greatest" piece of statecraft ever struck off by the brain and pen of man. They were not weary of the common consent of mankind as the "greatest" piece of statecraft ever struck off by the brain and pen of man. They were not weary of the common consent of mankind as the "greatest" piece of statecraft ever struck off by the brain and pen of man.

The long suspense had ended, the crisis had passed, and the men who had signed the document were now free to go. But they did not go. They remained in the hall, and they were not alone. They were joined by the representatives of the people, and they were not alone. They were joined by the representatives of the people, and they were not alone. They were joined by the representatives of the people, and they were not alone.

On this day, when the sun, whose rising Franklin saw, is seemingly in its noonday splendor, with its rays blinding the whole world, we can see the full realization of the sun's power. The sun is still ascending in the constellation of the nations, for who can ignore the momentous shifting of the world's center of gravity, which recent events have evidenced? The sun is still ascending in the constellation of the nations, for who can ignore the momentous shifting of the world's center of gravity, which recent events have evidenced?

There is a remarkable similarity between world conditions in 1787 and those of the present hour. Then, as now, a world war had just ended. Then, as now, there had been a swift and terrible reaction in the souls of men from the noblest of purposes and the divine spirit of self-sacrifice and had animated the nations in their fierce struggle for existence. As Washington said, "The whole world was in an uproar," and again he said the difficulty was "to steer between Scylla and Charybdis." Especially deplorable were the conditions in the colonies in the years that had intervened the treaty of peace and the meeting of the Constitutional Convention.

The spirit of anarchy, or as we would now say, Bolshevism, had swept a people, who had already been gravely tried in the fiery furnace of war. Credit was gone, business paralyzed, and in certain sections lawlessness rampant. Not only between class and class but between State and State, there were wars of words and an alarming disunity of spirit. The currency of the little nation was worthless. It had shrunk to a nominal ratio of one cent to the dollar. Even its bonds were sold at one-fourth their value. The slant expression, "not worth a continent," is a surviving evidence of the contempt for the financial credit of the country. Traders derisively plastered the walls of their shops with worthless legal tenders.

When invited to attend the proposed Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, Washington at first declined. He had retired to Mt. Vernon in despair and disgust. Suddenly the news of Shay's rebellion in Western Massachusetts came to his startled ears. It was essential, as we would now say, Bolshevism, movement, an uprising of debtors and farmers. Courts of law were seized to subvert order and destroy property rights. The revolution spread from Massachusetts to adjoining States and threatened to strangle the infant Republic at its birth. Only an army of five thousand men and an actual battle sufficed to end it. Civil war had come.

Washington saw this in his retirement at Mount Vernon, with acute anguish of spirit, he wrote: "What, gracious God, is man that there should be such inconsistency and profligacy in his conduct?" It was but the other day that we were shedding our blood to obtain the constitutions under which we now live, and now we are unheeding our sacred duty to overturn them. The thing is so unaccountable that I hardly know how to realize it or to persuade myself that I am not under an illusion of a dream."

Once again the father of his people came to their rescue. Turning his back upon the sweet retirement of Mount Vernon, which he thought would be his solace for the five years of absence during the last struggle, Washington again accepted the call of his country and was hailed on his journey to Philadelphia to attend the Constitutional Convention as the savior of the nation.

project and so weak the faith in the possibility of any favorable result that only a few delegates had arrived on the day set for the beginning of the Convention and for many days it was impossible to secure a quorum.

While waiting for enough delegates to form a bare quorum of the proposed convention, Washington gathered the faithful few about him and, as Gouverneur Morris narrated years afterwards, he said:

"It is too probable that no plan that we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and just can repair. The event is in the hand of God." In 1776 the task of our Fathers was to make America safe for democracy. It was to make democracy safe for America. This was the more difficult task. The Fathers worked with a sad and terrible necessity of the situation. They were plain men and their unequalled success owes much to their simplicity of thought and action, for the great thing of life are simplicity and sincerity. They preferred reality to Mother Earth's hard ground of reality, over which they painfully struggled until they had reached the empyrean of achievement. They were practical men and never more practical than when they formulated this wonderful instrument of government. While they had little of the spirit of doctrinarianism, yet the great charter which contained about four thousand words, eighty-nine articles, forty distinct provisions, stated a policy which constituted the principle of the whole law and the prophets of free government.

The principal features of this philosophy was a belief in the representative government as distinguished from direct action of the people, a dual form of government which gave power to the central government and to the states of purely national concern, home rule to preserve the spirit of the limitation of the power of democracy by protecting the individual from the unfair abuses of majority rule; the development of a fine and noble idealism; the principle of an independent judiciary to preserve the Constitution and to protect the individual from the abuses of popular government; the system of popular mental checks and balances to prevent the usurpation of power by any branch of the government, and last, but not least, the concurrent power of the Senate and the Executive in formulating the policy of the nation with respect to the rest of the world.

These in brief are the fundamental principles of the Constitution, and while some of them were merely of free government of previous ages, some constitute an original contribution to the ordered progress of mankind. In minor details the Constitution was not static and admitted of progressive adaptation to the changes of the most progressive age in human history, but these principles were not of the day, they were fundamental principles of human life for all time. Were Franklin again to revisit the colonies of the moon and enter this hall today, would he, with his unequalled prescience, wonder if the sun as a rising one? Would he if he knew the developments of the last century, regard this the great luminary of the nations in the Square, there sounded in noble song?

Within the shadow of the bell which crowns the old bell, one hundred and forty-seven years ago, proclaimed "Liberty throughout the world," there met thirty-six years ago, the then President of the United States, Mr. Cleveland, the representatives of the Government, the representatives of many nations, and a great body of American citizens, to thank God that a full century had achieved through the cathedral arches of the trees of independence. The sun, there sounded in noble song?

the faith of a people that "ages upon ages" would be the happy lot of America.

This joyous triumph of a proud and exultant people had then no minor share of doubt as to the future. In all the public utterances that marked that noted celebration, there was no doubt of the fact that the Ship of State had weathered its hardest storms. It had escaped the rocks and shoals which had wrecked other governments, and that, in the uncharted future, there were before it only smooth seas and cloudless skies.

If any of us who took part in that celebration had then anticipated the portentous changes of the next twenty-five years, I think the note of exultation would, like Macbeth's "Amen," have stuck in our throats. Little we then realized that before they formed an integrated and reactionary document and an obstacle to the progress of the American people.

In measuring the force of Constitutional changes, it is necessary to note the changes in the Constitution of the States, as well as in that of the Federal Government. Together they form the real Constitutional system of the American Commonwealth. The representative principle has been challenged in at least twenty-two States of the Union by the initiative and the referendum. The principle of home rule has been subverted by a steady submergence of the States, which has now made of them little more than glorified police provinces. The latest illustration is the Prohibition Amendment, whereby Congress is given power to prescribe the habits of the people. To combat an ancient evil, the people, as was their clear right, amended their Constitution. It is now a part of the organic law, and should be obeyed, but it is nevertheless a fact that by this amendment, the symmetry of the Constitution was injured and its basic principle of home rule forever impaired.

The guaranty of individual liberty has been violated by many socialistic measures, while property rights are destroyed from time to time by confiscatory legislation. The independence of the judiciary is menaced by many provisions for the recall both of judges and of judicial decisions, and the fatal impairment of the power of the Supreme Court.

The system of governmental checks and balances has been disturbed by the persistent subordination, in the practical workings of the Government, of the Executive to the Legislature; while the concurrent power of the Senate over the foreign relations of the Government has been challenged by many thousands of well-meaning but misguided men. The taxing system has been perverted to redistribute property. The commercial power of the Union has been injured and its basic constitutional results which were clearly outside of the sphere of the Federal Government.

The First and Fourteenth Amendments have largely broken down as bulwarks against confiscatory legislation. The Fifteenth Amendment has been injured and its basic constitutional results which were clearly outside of the sphere of the Federal Government.

Under more than one administration the control of the Senate in the selection of diplomatic representatives has been nullified by the appointment of extra-constitutional diplomats. Even the concurrence of the Senate in the treaty obligations of the Government has been impaired by many administrations by protocols, informal treaties, and by methods of treaty-making which make the free decision of the Senate difficult, if not impossible.

Still more amazing and menacing are the propositions of some of our leading public men to destroy the balance wheel of our constitutional system by impairing the power of the Supreme Court to preserve the form of Government in its integrity. The Supreme Court has been the most admired feature of our institutions. No one can read our history and fail to recognize that without that court the Constitution would probably have long since perished. It has been as a great light-house and while the angry waves of popular passion have time and again beaten with fury upon its foundations, yet when the storm had subsided it was recognized by all men that the lamp of the Constitution still continued to send forth its beacon rays upon the troubled surface of the waters. It is now gravely proposed by some capable and responsible leaders of thought that this unique and indispensable feature of our institutions should be impaired, if not practically destroyed, so that the legislatures of State and Nation may have power to pass statutes in violation of the wise limitations of the Constitution.

That a statute could not be enforced without violating the Constitution, nevertheless its decision would be nullified because three absent justices did not concur in the judgment. A man could thus be arbitrarily deprived of liberty, property and even life in violation of the sacred guaranties of the Constitution because although six justices of the court were unanimously of opinion that the guarantees protected him from an unjust statute, the absence of three justices had destroyed the power of the court. If eight judges were sitting, two could destroy the power of the court; if seven were sitting, one justice would control the court in its most vital function.

Another portentous proposal is that a given statute cannot be enforced without violating the Constitution yet if two-thirds of the legislative body reconsecrate the offending statute it shall nevertheless be law. This proposition has at least the democratic justification that it gives effect to the popular will, but it is the destruction of our form of government, which wisely confined the power of the majority within reasonable limits. The men who framed the Constitution did not believe in unlimited democracy. They regarded the tyranny of a majority as a constantly oppressive, as that of a single autocrat. The Constitution thus sought to protect the individual from the impairment of his reserved rights. Such was the noble guaranty of the Constitution, but it is not worth the paper it is written on, unless there is an independent judiciary to enforce it, and therefore the appointment of three justices of the Supreme Court, thus a radical faction could be formed in the Supreme Court which would make it possible for many years for that body to discharge its great duty of preserving the Constitution. Indeed the unanimous decision of the court might thus be destroyed, for the court does not always have a full bench and at times, through death or illness, only six justices may be actually sitting. If, therefore, such a court were unanimously of opinion that a statute could not be enforced without violating the Constitution, nevertheless its decision would be nullified because three absent justices did not concur in the judgment. A man could thus be arbitrarily deprived of liberty, property and even life in violation of the sacred guaranties of the Constitution because although six justices of the court were unanimously of opinion that the guarantees protected him from an unjust statute, the absence of three justices had destroyed the power of the court. If eight judges were sitting, two could destroy the power of the court; if seven were sitting, one justice would control the court in its most vital function.

Our own land has not been exempted from similar exhibitions of class tyranny. The labor movement, the right of labor to organize, to act collectively and even to strike for better conditions, has been met by employer to compel the demands of the employed. Once regarded as a crime, this is now held to be inherent in the liberty of man to work for or to refuse to work, as he thinks proper. But this right as it really is, is not absolute and government would indeed be impotent if it could not prevent the arbitrary abuses of such power. An equal power must exist to prevent the right to strike from degenerating into an exercise of tyranny, subversive of the equal rights of other people and of the State.

On the eve of the Presidential election of 1916, the organization which represents the labor engaged in transportation—as essential to the life of a nation as the circulation of the blood—is to the life of an individual—was recently served notice that their wages must be raised by a stop-watch in their hands, they demanded immediate compliance with their impetuous demands, and not only did the President and the Congress yield, but the Supreme Court bent to the storm in sustaining as a summer cloud, an unprecedented exercise of legislative power. "Can such things be," and overcame us as a summer cloud, without our special wonder?"

It is gratifying to add that, when a second attempt was subsequently made to turn this free republic into a Soviet form of government, and the same labor leaders demanded under the threat of a nation-wide strike, the passage of an act which would have largely taken from the owners of railway securities their own property, both the President and the Congress, without division of the party and with a genuine unanimity refused to surrender to the immediate demand. In America—thank the God of free government—the right of free government is not yet dead.

Who, however, can understand the peril? If the labor leaders who control mining and transportation can deny to the people coal and food, unless their arbitrary demands are met, there is an end of free government. And yet when a brave Attorney General said this a year ago, he was rewarded by sincere and constituted authority with the solemn warning of George Washington in the Farewell Address, and, at the same time, perceive the extraordinary apathy of his language to present conditions.

All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, interfere with, or awe the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle and of fatal tendency.

Thus it is proposed that a law shall not be invalidated unless at least seven of the nine justices are of the opinion that the law is unconstitutional. It would thus be within the power of the majority to prevent the court from taking action which two-thirds of that great tribunal, regarded as essential to the preservation of the Constitution, would make it possible for many years for that body to discharge its great duty of preserving the Constitution. SAYS NEAR EAST MINORITIES ROOM IN HOPELESS EXILE

Charles V. Vickery.

Longfellow's "Evangeline" is a "pretty romance" compared to the tragic story of the minority peoples of the Near East who are now wallowing in hopeless exile, according to Charles V. Vickery, general secretary of the Near East Relief. He has just returned to the U. S. He reports the presence of 100,000 children, half of whom are orphans or half-orphans, in the Greek refugee camps.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Weyb's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied. Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the use of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks are wanted around, and get busy with Weyb's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days. --Advertisement.

A Rising or a Setting Sun AMERICA AND ITS CONSTITUTION

"The combination of the above description may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely in the course of time and things to become better guides by which cunning, ambitious and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people, and to usurp for themselves the reins of government, destroying afterwards the very engines which have lifted them to unjust domination."

Who can deny that in recent years, our country has witnessed such "obstructions to the execution of the laws," such "combination and associations," designed to control, counteract or even the regular deliberation and action of the constituted authorities?

I have dwelt upon the disintegrating tendencies of direct action, whether by organization of capital or labor, as it seems to me the most serious menace to the perpetuity of our Constitution. When this era is seen by a later age in the perspective of history I am not sure that that future generation may not recognize that the most portentous discovery in political science of the nineteenth century was the recognition by large and important combinations of men of the fact that their power to control the community by the means of the press and the necessities of life, as compared to the political power of the ballot box, was as a 42 centimeter gun to a toy pistol.

Nothing then the deep of belief in many countries in the ballot box, or in the legislative assemblies through this medium. The whole world seems to be in the throes of revolution. In Italy, a threatened Communist revolution defeated by a counter revolution under a beneficent dictator, who, however, in order, a military dictator in Spain, class war in Bulgaria, civil war in Germany, China and Cuba are current illustrations.

How can we affirm with confidence that the waves of revolution may not reach our own country. It is true that its prosperity and the fact that the blessings of life are more generally distributed here than in any other country is not a fruitful soil for the spirit of revolt in America, where every man is a capitalist even if he is poor, but will our sinning prosper? Always prove a sufficient bulwark against Bolshevism. Is it safe to ignore the moral poison that has been slowly injected into the veins of America by the world-wide movement of Communism which has its source in Moscow and Petrograd? It may yet appear that the turning point in modern history was when England and the United States refused to join with France shortly after the Armistice in redeeming Russia from the cold blooded tyranny of Lenin and Trotsky. As long as these two bloody dictators, in comparison with whom Marquis Robespierre and Danton were comparatively respectable, govern the destinies of that hapless people and with their stolen booty attempt to poison the peoples of other countries, a dark shadow rests upon the whole world. Since 1919 a well organized Communist party has existed in this country whose avowed aim is to overthrow the Government by force or violence. It is well financed by the Soviet Government. The vast two years have witnessed a remarkable and persistent activity in its activities. The agencies used to propagate the baleful ideas of the Third International have even reached into some of our schools and colleges. There are now distributed in this country 567 radical papers which are printed in 26 languages, and what is more significant, 553 are printed in foreign countries. It is believed that their joint circulation in this country is not less than one million issues a day, and I am authorized to inform that of over $400,000 was sent from Moscow for use this year in alienating the negro portion of our population with the Third International as its ally.

There is open violence would promise little success, an incalculable injury can be done to this country by the widely circulated propaganda to follow the Cullen's policy of making wages but shrinking work.

It is fortunate indeed that the greatest labor organization in this country, the American Federation of Labor, has been able to stand against the spirit of Bolshevism and in its own internal organizations is waging a valiant warfare against an increasing minority who would convert the American labor movement into one of communistic tendencies.

The Federal Government has not been indifferent to the spread of such propaganda and only the past week the Attorney General has taken steps by cooperation with the State authorities to establish a more effective supervision of the revolutionary and criminal elements in this country.

The is, however, a large consideration which does not permit me to do more than suggest, and it applies to all classes of the American people. We attribute a magical effect to the Constitution of the United States. We think that the document by its own inherent power has controlled the destinies of the American people. The fact is that the charter, no matter how wise its provisions were in theory, would have been a failure if there had not been a people with a sufficient genius for government to maintain its principles. Other nations have had no less conceived constitutions, but they became mere scraps of paper because the people for whom they were intended did not have a sufficient sense of constitutional morality to make them effective. A constitution is valueless unless a people has the spirit of self-restraint.

The serious question presents itself whether the present generation, upon whom the maintenance of the Constitution must finally depend, have the same capacity for self-government and self-restraint as previous generations.

I have elsewhere discussed and will not now repeat my own somewhat pessimistic belief that our hyper-mechanical civilization has resulted in a marked deterioration in human character. Man as the citizen, the worker, the head of the family, the thinker, and above all, as the responsible moral being, seems to me to have retrograded in my life-time.

To insure the perpetuity of any form of popular government three conditions must exist:

In the first place the people must take an active and militant interest in the operations of government, for eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Today at many elections one-half of the electorate does not even take enough interest to vote. The old time militant activity of the citizens belonging to two strong, powerful political parties has largely spent its force. Recall the campaign of 1850, when the only issue was a high and low tariff; remember the incessant activities of the two great parties between the nominating convention and the election; recall the countless thousands of meetings that were held nightly throughout the land; the great party organizations which in our large cities marched as great armies in defense of their principles; and then recall in recent times the scant interest that was taken by the American people in so prodigious a problem as the League of Nations, which involved the momentous question of the attitude of the United States to the rest of the world in the trying years to come.

"CORN FED" BEAUTY OFF THE FARM LURED RICH HUBBY AWAY, SAYS WIFE

Mrs. William Weightman and, inset, her husband.

Everything was lovely in the home of William Weightman, grandson of the late millionaire chemical man, until Weightman became enamored of a country lass on a farm at Oswego, N. Y., in 1921, according to Mrs. Weightman, in her suit for divorce, recently filed in the east. Then Weightman forgot about his previous ties and up and married the rural miss, Mrs. Weightman charges. She cites the alleged bigamous marriage and his alleged failure to support her as causes for seeking her freedom. Weightman denies the charges.

In the second place the people must take an intelligent interest in politics and I gravely doubt whether there is today the same clarity of vision that marked our political life even fifty years ago. Man today has engrained himself in an ocean of printer's ink and he has lost his sense of values that today the average man has what I would call a moving picture brain, which retains only transient impressions about anything and if this were not bad enough the universal disease which afflicts all of us is a neuritis St. Vitus dance, fatal alike to repose of mind or consistency of action.

In the third place, if free government is to function man must have a deep and abiding respect akin to a religious feeling for the authority and persistent loyalty to its activities. The agencies used to propagate the baleful ideas of the Third International have even reached into some of our schools and colleges. There are now distributed in this country 567 radical papers which are printed in 26 languages, and what is more significant, 553 are printed in foreign countries. Roy Chapman Andrews Tells
New Yorkers of Man
Eaters in Asia.

Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, which has been collecting the fossilized remains of prehistoric monsters in Mongolia, told yesterday of the "human interest" side of three years' work and 10,000 miles' travel in regions hitherto untraveled by white men, reports the New York Times.

He announced at the same time that it had been decided that the next expedition, which will set out next year, will last five years instead of two as first planned. He said that they had great hopes of finding the remains of primitive humans and thus work back to the origin of man.

"When we first arrived in the interior," said Mr. Andrews yesterday at the museum, where he explained he was talking by courtesy of the Asia magazine, "we were struck by the fact that the natives stood in the greatest awe of our motor transport. The great party organizations which in our large cities marched as great armies in defense of their principles; and then recall in recent times the scant interest that was taken by the American people in so prodigious a problem as the League of Nations, which involved the momentous question of the attitude of the United States to the rest of the world in the trying years to come.

Dramatists Are Delight to 500

Five hundred persons who packed the Carroll Methodist church were delighted with the entertainment presented by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wells as the second number on the lecture course being given through the Redpath bureau.

The play, known throughout the continent as being the first to successfully produce complete plays in which there were only two in the cast, was a dramatic drama called "Atoneement," written especially for them by Herbert Thomas. Mr. Wells played the dual role of Bernard Holloway, and his son Kenneth. Mrs. Wells, who was acted by Mrs. Wells. The pleasure derived from the play which unfolds the triumph of a mother's love over the criminal tendencies of her husband, a Buddha, is increased by the acting of Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

Novelty musical acts given by Mr. and Mrs. Wells, both of whom possess fine voices, composed the first part of the program.

Brodhead Farmer Is Found Hanging

Brodhead—in ill health for a year, William Witt, 45, a farmer, was found hanging in his barn from a rope which had been tied to the rafters. He leaves a wife and three children. His wife is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Zollnow, Brodhead.

DELANVAN STUDENTS PRESENTING PLAY

DeLavan students are giving a play this week entitled "The Visit of Othello." Music is furnished by the high school orchestra. The cast includes: Nicholas Bremer, Beatrice Hess, Louise Elzer, Marlene Parsh, Evelyn Gray, Margaret Sullivan, Dorothy Bright, Irma Markell, Elizabeth Deane, Yvonne Shinnings, Agnes Peffer and Laura Mae Obrecht.

The death of a clown is like the death of laughter. Recently the king of clowns dropped out of the line, Al Mace, whose name was unknown to the vast majority of people for sixty-six years, kissed his fingers to the crowd and slipped out of life.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER TO AID

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Memphis—Improvement of river channels of the Mississippi valley for navigation purposes will afford a practical basis for many of the marketing problems now confronting farmers of the central state, Hallett W. Seaman, vice president of the City National bank, Clinton, Mo., declared today before the convention of the Mississippi Valley association.

Mr. Seaman urged development of waterways as an avenue of help to agriculture that would allow the farmer to retain something of his self respect as a business man by marketing his own crop.

Partners will be helped, he said, if the government will improve these Mississippi valley channels and extend its large live operations on them, providing reliable transportation.

How to Make a Real Football Game

Use soft wood for the entire job. Lay out half-inch squares on a piece of wood 1/2" thick and outline the body, arms, and legs of the man, as shown above. Cut these carefully. If more than one toy is to be made, patterns for these parts should be made from thin cardboard. The base pieces and goal posts may be made as shown in the drawing, care being taken to fit all parts together neatly and firmly, so that there will be no wobbling.

In assembling and placing the man, brad his two arms and his left leg to his body. This left leg is then fitted into the baseboard with a good snug fit. The right leg is fastened in place with a small screw to allow free movement, as it is the leg that kicks.

Adjust the support for the football so that the foot of the right leg, when it swings forward, will come in contact with the football in such a manner as to drive it forward to the best advantage. The football may be made of either soft wood or cork. The power of the kick comes from a rubber band fastened as shown above.

With this toy a regular game may be played. Complete rules for playing the game and for painting the toy are given in the diagram.

350 Greet Irish Play Interpreter

Celtic temperament, coupled with rare artistry and Miss Mary Agnes Doyle, distinguished interpreter of Irish literature, made a strong appeal in her first appearance, in "The Whitehead Boy," Thursday night, at St. Patrick's hall. Three hundred and fifty attended the entertainment, which was given under the auspices of the Catholic Women's club, with the School for the Blind orchestra playing a group of selections before the reading.

After the entertainment, the committee in charge, consisting of the Misses Irene Crowley, Margaret Gateley, Norma Ryan and Mrs. Arthur Welsh, entertained the board of directors with a reception to meet Miss Doyle. Lunch was served from a table decorated with lavender and yellow flowers. The focal motif was a yellow bow filled with lavender sweet peas and flanked on either side with yellow candlesticks, containing lavender candles. Streamers reached from the lights to the four corners of the table. The Misses Mary Ryan, Katherine Scholler, Eileen Dixon, and Kathryn Pinley, who ushered at the entertainment, served at the reception. Short talks were given by the Rev. Dean James P. Ryan and the Rev. William Mahoney, Watertown, who was in the city to attend the reading. Mrs. Wayne Arthur Munn, also a guest, gave the French dialect reading, "Mon Fiere." Miss Doyle read two poems from Rose Fyleman's "Fables and Chimeras," entitled "The Best Game," and "There Are Patrics in Our Garden." For an encore, Miss Doyle responded with "Between Two Loves," an Italian dialect poem, by Thomas A. Daley.

SEEK TO REMOVE TURK SLAVE MARK

Armenian Girls in Chicago Hospital After Harrowing Experiences.

CHICAGO.—Dealing on their faces the tattoo brands of Arabian slavery, Rose and Helen Manerian, two young Armenian girls are in the Chicago Alcott hospital, where doctors are gradually removing the marks that had been a sign of servitude. The two have been brought to this country from Arabia by their brother, Ibrahim, who learned of their whereabouts through English "Tommyes," according to the story told to doctors and nurses at the hospital.

It was in 1915 when trouble started for Rose and Helen. With their father, mother and an elder brother they resided among the mountains in Urfa, Mesopotamia. Then came the Turkish troops and fighting. The father and brother disappeared. No one knew their whereabouts. The two children and their mother were herded into the desert, where the mother died of exhaustion. A raid by Arabian corsairs carried the pair by camel caravan to the land of Ur, where a wealthy Arabian nomad became their owner.

Enslaved by Ibrahim, the two girls were placed on the forehead, cheeks and lips of the girls as a token of possession. Their master put them to watching sheep and caring for the camel train as they moved over the country.

After the armistice, Ibrahim sold them to a learned of the two girls, got in touch with their relatives and helped to free them. Now in this country they hope to learn the language and to take their place as Americans in the household of their elder brother.

MOVE TO ENFORCE PURE FOOD LAWS

Misbranding of Cold Storage Eggs Rouses Ire of Authorities.

MADISON.—Action to enforce state pure food laws with regard to the sale of cold storage eggs will be taken immediately, following a ruling from the attorney general that any statement on containers which are misleading in violation of the state law, J. G. Emory, state food and dairy commissioner, announced today.

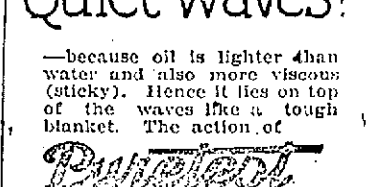

A test case of a Milwaukee firm, which is said to be selling cold storage eggs labelled "fresh," was submitted to the legal department and it was held "any statement on cartons containing eggs, which is misleading, in any particular, makes the goods misbranded."

This practice is prevalent throughout the state, Mr. Emory said. He stated that notice of the ruling will be given firms reported to the department and if the practice continues, court action will be brought against them.

WOMAN TELLS HOW GERMANY SUFFERS

Conditions Getting Worse, Recipient of U. S. Donation, Writes.

Coal is worth 30 million marks, wood 40 million marks and potatoes 12 million marks in Germany, according to a communication received by Arthur Schauer, Janesville, Wis. People cannot even buy living necessities with clothing, shoes and bread costing 14 million marks.

When old clothing was collected to be sent to the poor in Germany, Mr. Schauer, a clerk at Hohenberg's clothing store, donated an old coat and placed two dimes in an inside pocket with a note requesting that the finder write a letter giving food information as to the cost of living and conditions in Germany.

Mr. Schauer received a letter with postage amounting to 20 million marks or 11 cents of U. S. money on it, in response.

The letter, written by a crippled woman, 73 years of age, and translated into English, for example:

"Dippeldiswalde, Sachsen, Germany, Oct. 30, 1923."

"My dear Mr. Schauer: This is to let you know that the distributor, Ernest Mehlhorn, gave me a package of clothing which was sent by you unbeknown to anyone and in a pocket of a coat I found a note and two pieces of silver. You asked that the finder of this note would write a few lines regarding conditions in Germany and I here take opportunity to thank you from the bottom of my heart."

"Now, my dear friend, I am going to answer your question as to how things are here. Times are very hard and are going to be worse. There is nothing we poor people can buy in living necessities. Wood, clothing and shoes, and bread cost 14 million marks. Butter a pound costs 18 million marks and all sweet stuff is very high. Coal is 30 million marks and some wood 40 million marks. Potatoes are 12 million marks and higher.

I am a cripple and cannot go out into the woods to get my wood. I am a widow, age 73 years, and my husband has been dead six years. I live with my daughter, who is 20 years old. She takes good care of me. My business makes it impossible for me to get outside and it is very hard for an old lady like me to live through such hard times as these.

"My dear friend, will you do me the favor to let me know if you received this letter? With best wishes, I remain, Mrs. Emmelle Janich, Schulgasse, 121."

CLUBBED TO DEATH AS INVALID WIFE LOOKS ON, HELPLESS

Minneapolis.—Hennepin county authorities today are looking for the masked intruder who strode into the home of Duane Chapel, 64, at Maple Street last night, and clubbed the man to death before the eyes of his wife.

Chapel, killed while taking a nap on his couch, had no chance to defend himself, and his invalid wife was helpless to aid him. For nearly three hours the woman remained in the house with the body, a nervous wreck unable to leave her chair. The alarm was given by Guy Chapel, 24, who returned from work to find his father dead.

"A big man with a club came into the front door," the bereaved wife said over and over again, in trying to describe the murder. She said the man entered in silence, did his work silently and departed without having uttered a word.

SEASON OPEN FOR "FAVORITE SONS"

Rush May Follow Watson Action to Hold Indiana from Johnson.

By DAVID LAWRENCE Copyright 1923 by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—The open season for "favorite sons" in presidential politics has begun. Senator James Watson's announcement that he will be a candidate for the republican presidential nomination, if only to keep the Indiana delegation from going to the convention instructed for Senator William Johnson, is a strategic move which other would-be candidates are bound to emulate.

Former Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois would have a good excuse to enter the contest only to keep it from going to Johnson. So also might Senator Capper of Kansas or Senator Cullen of Michigan or Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania or Senator Borah of Idaho, or any of the other men who might be favorably regarded in their own states as against a candidate from the outside.

On the surface what Senator Watson's statement means in practical politics is that he will make the race for himself but when he goes to the convention he will swing his delegates to the Coolidge band wagon if the latter starts moving toward success. Such a step always places the "favorite son" in a position later on to obtain from the winning administration such favor as is ordinarily bestowed on political supporters who at the psychological moment furnish the sheaves of victory.

Look for Second Place

But there may be a vice presidential nomination concealed in many of the "favorite son" boom. Indiana, for instance, is a popular place for the republican party to go when it comes to selecting vice presidential nominees. Indiana is a pivotal state and a man who can carry Indiana is a strong point for any presidential ticket.

The republican party by the hand of fate has in vice president in nomination. The field is open. There was a time when the vice presidency was scorned, but the prominent part given Mr. Coolidge in cabinet councils by the late President Harding has made the job a much more interesting one even though not any more spectacular. At least the vice president is now a man who is given the opportunity to make his mark in the United States senate over which he presides.

Going Out West

The natural inclination of the politicians is to go to the middle west or even far west for a vice presidential nominee. Since Mr. Coolidge is from the east, his friends are anxious to have a running mate with him someone who can help in the west. Mr. Coolidge, moreover, is of the conservative type. Someone with a little more appeal to the radical sentiment of the west would please the Coolidge managers very much.

Playing the game from the Coolidge side, it is natural that his political managers should say to certain "favorite sons" at this time: "Go ahead and capture the delegation from your state and hold it for Coolidge. On the showing you make before the country may depend our chances for the vice presidency."

So it may come about that the favorite son campaign will tend on the one hand to give William Johnson a battle in many states that he is counting on and will at the same time develop the vice presidential possibilities for the republican ticket. Jim Watson's announcement is not taken here to mean that he is unfriendly to the Coolidge team but that he is maneuvering into a position in which he can help the president win the nomination.

ERNEST HARRIMAN'S WHITE HOUSE REMINISCENCES

I remember the time when Mr. Roosevelt, then president, amused me by his extraordinary memory. I was playing in Washington at the time, and after Mr. Roosevelt had seen me at the theater, I dined at the White House, sitting next to the president.

During the meal he repeated to me verbatim line after line of the play! Another member of the Roosevelt family possessed of a vital brain and a charming personality is Alcee Roosevelt, a friend of mine and a person for whom I have a tremendous admiration. One day at the White House we had gone upstairs after lunch to put on our hats—we were going to a matinee. We got into the cloakroom which we ran ourselves, and the children, Quentin and Kermit, who were little boys at the time, thought it would be funny to open the doors so the cloakroom couldn't move. They kept us between floors while they roared with laughter. We could not make anybody hear us. I shall never forget the little Roosevelt's dashing around the lower floors of the White House on roller-skates, so when I read Mr. Roosevelt's "Letters to His Children," it did not surprise me at all to learn that they had pillow fights on the upper floors.—from the Dellinger.

HOW TO ANSWER CLASSIFIED ADS.
In answering classified or want ads, which ask that the applicant address some certain number, Gazette, such as 217, our readers are again asked to bear in mind that this office has nothing to do with the advertiser. Those answering must send their replies to the advertiser, addressed with the number and whatever it may be. The office acts in the capacity of a post office, turning over the answers to the person who advertises. He in turn, will then, if he desires, telephone or write to the person who is seeking the position.
It must also be borne in mind that the Gazette can not reveal the identity of the advertiser, who of course would not have advertised as he did if he wished the applicants to call on him in person.

CLASSIFIED AD REPIQUES
At 10:00 o'clock today there will be a repique in the Gazette office in the following boxes:
975, 980, 982, 22, 49, 50, 60, 61, 67,
63, 68, 69, 72, 73.
